The Advantages of Gifting Life Insurance

A sufficiently funded policy can provide funds, through tax-free loans and withdrawals[1], to help pay for education costs, a wedding, or as a down payment on a first home.

1. The use of cash value life insurance to provide a resource for accumulation goals assumes that there is first a need for the death benefit protection. The ability of a life insurance contract to accumulate sufficient cash value to help pay expenses or meet accumulation goals will be dependent upon the amount of extra premium paid into the policy, and the performance of the policy, and is not guaranteed. Policy loans and withdrawals reduce the policy's cash value and death benefit and may result in a taxable event. Surrender charges may reduce the policy's cash value in early years. The use of one benefit may reduce or eliminate other policy and rider benefits.
